

Endorsed!!!

70 endorsements - 4 November 2016

More than fifty endorsements have been received since the previous list of four weeks ago. In all, up to 4 November 2016, 70 endorsements have been made.

We invite you to encourage colleagues in your science editor networks – including authors, reviewers and funders – to endorse the Guidelines, by completing the form at:

www.ease.org.uk/genderpolicycommittee where very frequent updates are published of our progress.

Endorsement expresses support of the principles of the SAGER Guidelines. It is not their full adoption and implementation – that process demands more time, patience and persuasion.

In their enthusiasm to promote the SAGER guidelines, a growing number of existing and intending endorsers are preparing editorials, articles and viewpoints for their next editions.

If you wish to do likewise in your journal, we shall be happy to share some model texts to assist you. Please contact your colleague within the Gender Policy Committee, or our co-chair Paola de Castro at paola.decastro@iss.it

Recent initiatives include:

- Kerstin Stenius published an editorial on SAGER in Nordic Studies on Alcohol and Drugs (October 2016)
- Cara Tannenbaum et al published the article Why sex and gender matter in implementation research in BMC Medical Research Methodology. The article mentions the SAGER Guidelines (October 2016)
- Janine Clayton and Cara Tannenbaum published a viewpoint in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) on Reporting Sex, Gender, or Both in Clinical Research, citing the SAGER Guidelines (October 2016)
- In The Lancet - Psychiatry, with thanks to Joan Marsh, the SAGER Guidelines are mentioned in the editorial of November 2016.
